Q: what is the most important human virtue ?

LOVE BB

In our life there is full of love. The love comes from our Parents, friends family even the strangers. Parents who gave me most of love. When I were borned, I got the love from my parents they took care of me and gave me what I need. They always beside me when I got the trouble ^{and} they would faced it with me. Now I am growing up I ~~have~~ get the love from others, my friends. They besides me when I am happy or sad. They gave me lots of idea when I got any problem. Love makes my life more wonderful and warm.

If there don't have any love in our world, the world will become very evil and dark. Nobody will treat you likes the friends even your parents would not besides you in your life. You must do anythings by yourself and you can't believe to ^{the} others because they do not trust you. If you get in trouble there is no one wants to give you a hand. You must faced the problem by yourself. And there don't have any other human virtue when we lost the love. Lost ^{the} love becomes more trouble and lots of arguing will come up. Human will fight with other the worst thing it may become the war and army. We would kill each other until all of the human ^{being} are disappeared.

Luckily, In our world is full of love. I think most of the human virtues are coming from love. Love gives us the wonderful life and peace world. We must preserve the most important human virtue and keep our world such beautiful likes a paradise.

In my opinion, the most important human virtue is honest

Firstly, honest people won't lie to themselves. They're willing to face their own successes and fails. Generally speaking, they won't find excuses, won't spend time on trying to cover things with beautiful surface which is fake. They know what's good and bad about themselves, therefore, they'll get improved easier.

Second, people who are honest to themselves shall listen to their own minds and hearts. They won't waste their time on chasing something they don't really want, because they know who they are. They'll be able to trust themselves, and won't be fooled by others so easily.

Finally, honest people usually don't lie to others, especially who are not just acquaintances to them. Lying to somebody may makes you feel bad. A couple of lies doesn't look too terrible. However, lies will get more and more if you're not fairly careful of them. And, suddenly, you're isolated by the lies that are surrounding you. You probably feel lonely, because there's no one know you for real. They only know the person who has been twisted by yourself. In the end, you may lose yourself in others' misunderstanding.

As a conclusion, I believe that being honest is completely important to a person.

Respect

I think respect is the most basic and important human virtue. Everyone needs your own respect, you have to respect someone else even if he or she is your enemy or someone who you hate the most.

And racial discrimination is the worse part of respect, I think it is the dark side of human respecting, this serious problem is happen in dozen of century and decade, and the worst part is people can't be on the alert, can't remember the lesson from the misery history.

Recently this kind of unrespecting happening in New York, USA, a crazy drug taking 'black' man, he is holding a knife and running on the street at 34 street just near by the Time Square, there are dozen of NYPD surrounding this man and trying to calm him down, but here a deal he is a druging man, which means he can't controlling himself, and the emergency situation break out ^{for} a few minute, In the end NYPD shooting 12 bullets on the 'black' man.

The next day New York Time lead news full of this case story, but if the criminal is a white color of some high level color..... then they won't settle this crime by using lot of bullets.

All because he is a 'Black' color person, not because his criming.

I think everone should have respecting in one way, no matter what color he/she is or where you from or what do you do, should be treat as a being respecting human.

respect Justin

There are thousands of different races of human beings in the world. But the problem of racism still exists worldwide.

I believe that it's due to the lack of respect among the people from all kinds of cultures. For instance, when the black people were still considered slaves in the US, they weren't respected whatsoever.

It doesn't mean they are inferior to anybody.

The lack of respect cause the tragedy.

If all the people from various culture can respect each other, then the world will be no more war and people will live in peace.

Same as to our lovely Mother Nature, all the ruiness is because some people don't respect her. We all know that global warming is a very serious problem.

As the time passes, the sign of it is getting more obvious. People all over the world suffer from the heat. The ice of the North Pole is melting faster than we could ever imagine and the homes of the polar bears are shrinking. Maybe some people will say that's just a plot of some scientists who want to cause attention to people. Whether they are right or not, one thing that is for certain is that if we don't respect our ^{only} earth, one day we are going to harm ourselves.

To sum up, we should all learn to respect each other even if standing for different ground, then the world will be wonderful and prosperous forever.

trust

Albert

There are several reasons that trust is the most important human virtue and the foundation of modern life.

Just imagine a world that have everything but trust between people. They can't trust the bus driver. They can't trust the teacher in school. They can't trust the judge on the court. They can't trust the house builder, and etc. That will be a terrify world. Almost nothing could be done because there are no cooperation. People will force to do everything by they own but it's impossible that one do very well on everything. So our live will draw back to medieval.

Another reason that trust is priceless is because it creat a "capital of socialty" which means that trust can save money. For instance, government don't have to hire people to check everyone's ticket on the MRT, and that save the man power and the pay. For another example, We can enjoy our shopping on the internet because we trust the shopper online and the quality of the products. We can happily go to a restaurant have a meal without fearing being seek, because we trust the food, furthermore we truth the government and jounolist will watch all of this for us.

Third, we focus on the smaller part. Between person and person "Trust" also play an important role. From the time we were babies, we have our natural trust toward our momther. When we grow up we develope trust on our bother and sister.

students and teachers, Most importantly we have trust on our friends who are strangers in the beginning. - These are really important relationship in our ~~life~~ ^{positive}

For these three main reason trust is the virtue that human beings should never forgive.

Forgive

Andrew

Jesus, the holy god in our mind, haven't ever blame anyone in his whole life. Even if his student _____ him, his believing has never moved — forgive others.

So far, how many times we have shouted at our families or friends just because they forgot something unimportant? How many times we ^{have} messed up each other's emotion? Most of us might can't even count them.

What will happen if we clam down ourselves, change the negative mind, think of some better solutions and start to talk to each other? Just imagine it. I believe all the aggressive movement won't appear and even become peaceful. Of course the most important thing is wearing a smile on our face, then talking to each other will be an easy thing for all of us to attempt.

From 18 century till today, with the decreasing amount of resource, the wars that are caused by human's greedy show on our everyday life. The best and the only way ⁿ⁻⁷ to go is to stop fighting; forgive each other and find out the solutions of lacked resource.

~~In my opinion,~~ Help
In my opinion, Help people is important do for human, Tim

In today this world, everyone help each others for example: on the city bus, the lets is full when old man come to up to bus, the young man will give he or she seat, If he or she have some products they will help he or she take. I think, this thing it was good! but only those things not only happen on old people, It will happen on you and me and need to help people. The happen really come to me, one day, the lunch time is come, then I just lost my money bag, I forgot bring money, but when I was think how can I do the like angel people give me a one dollar, let me bought, Some food get eat, then just says: you don't have to give me a one dollar tomorrow, when I hear he say, I'm really appreciate to him. after we become a good friend, and he help me a lot. Sometime he will drive take me to home.

In this world need a lot help, Help people will let you and you help people happy..
